A NOTE FROM THE OWNERS

Welcome to Hasbrouck House!

After a meticulous, and at times arduous restoration process, which our families back in Brooklyn will not soon forget, we are thrilled to welcome you to our labor of love.

We only had to visit this property one time to know we wanted to make this the next great upstate destination. We immediately knew we needed to restore the Hasbrouck House name, its title since being built as a country home in 1757, and what the locals have never stopped calling it.

During the renovations, we only fell more in love with the property – its 1923-built, 55-foot pool that hadn't been used in decades, a hidden lake, and a smokehouse abandoned for ages that our chef has fired up again.

Not to mention Stone Ridge, and all of the Hudson Valley, which we have come to love for its clean air, majestic mountains, tall trees, and most of all, for the people who have become our neighbors and part of our team.

Thanks for coming! We hope you love it here as much as we do, and that we'll see you again and again.

NEW YORK

Akiva Reich, a New York City-based developer with a penchant for seeing potential, was instrumental in ushering the rebirth of the Gowanus neighborhood in Brooklyn, minutes from where he grew up, with the transformation of a late-1800s dilapidated brass foundry into the Green Building, one of the borough's most coveted event spaces.

His company, Gowanus Hospitality Group, applies a unique approach to restoration, preservation, and innovation to a range of properties and businesses. Its portfolio includes; Akiva Reich & Co. design build company, luxury Brooklyn event space 501 Union, Starling an Event Planning & Design company, The Love Union a Brooklyn based hospitality centric curated conference, Swan Dive bar and Pig Beach BBQ restaurant in Brooklyn. The hospitality group also represents luxury destination properties Zenaida Estate in Anguilla and Peace Villa house in Santa Teresa, Costa Rica.

When Akiva learned that an 18th-century Dutch Colonial mansion was for sale in the picturesque hamlet of Stone Ridge, NY he reached out to former colleague Eitan Baron, known for a development portfolio of environmentally-friendly projects and their forward-thinking touches like electric car charging stations.

Akiva knew that Eitan's unique ability to preserve historic beauty while offering modern comforts and amenities, as well as his longtime connection to the Catskills region, made him the ideal partner for the transformation of the Hasbrouck House.

The friends acquired the property together and the rest is history. Akiva and Eitan like to think this project has been 260 years in the making; since the house was first built as local family's country home, to now, when they can proudly open the doors of this boutique hotel offering 20 very different rooms and suites spread out between the 1757-built main house, to the early 20th century constructed carriage and stable houses.

The partners wanted to honor the integrity of these original structures while updating them with sophisticated amenities, and under the direction of Akiva's design firm, Akiva Reich & Co., gave each one a vintage yet modern aesthetic.

Akiva and Eitan invite you to explore the property's newly forged trails, or simply lounge poolside with a cocktail in hand. They hope to see you wild ice skating on the pond in the winter, or roasting marshmallows over the bonfire under the stars.

Whatever season you come, and whatever your interests are, Hasbrouck House hopes you take a minute to disconnect from the chaos of everyday life in this serene, beautiful setting. Please let us know how we can help you make the best of your stay here!

Owners, Akiva Reich & Eitan Baron

MEET OUR MAKERS

DANA MCCLURE

Artwork on display in our cellar Game Room

Dana McClure is a visual artist and designer who runs a gathering hub called Ravenwood out of an 1850s barn in Kerhonkson, NY. For the past 10 years, the space has gone through multiple iterations and serves as a backdrop for the celebration of the heightened seasonality in our region through agriculture, food and design. This past summer, Dana curated two showcases of NY-based female artists ranging from mixed-media collage and painting to ceramic sculpture and fiber art. Her curations often include pieces from her own studio work that integrates photography, collage and painting inspired by homegrown blooms.
